First, in astrological studies, date time and place of birth are key.

On the other hand, numerological studies do not require place and time to have predictions.

The second difference between astrology is that, in astrology, the birth time dictates your rising sign while in numerology time of birth is not of the essence.

When it comes to numerology people born on the same day, have similar names but born at different times in the same day share same characteristics

As in Astrology, your personality portrait is formed on the basis of your date of birth, time and place; in Numerology, it is a bit easier; here, it is calculated on the basis of just six numerals in the numerological chart. From these six digits, three are calculated on the basis of date of birth, and the other three are calculated on the basis of numbers pulled from the letters of a person's name.
